AERIAL PHOTOGRAPHY/ MAPPING

True color digital mosaics are very useful tools in many industries for several applications. City municipalities are interested in mosaics for future planning and analysis as well as potential impact studies. These can be used to represent areas affected by waterline and road additions, and emergency service changes. Project planning for roadway, power line, and other utilities has been greatly assisted with timely aerial imagery. Color infrared (CIR) imagery is used a great deal in forest related application including determining forest health and identifying species.
